Close Contests In Monday's Election

Andover's town election Monday culminates the quietest campaign in years, but the quietness of the pre-election period does not necessarily mean no close fights.

The ballot will be the shortest in years, with only five positions being contested for, and in these five there will be only one also-ran. Selectman J. Everett Collins, unopposed three years ago, has P. LeRoy Wilson, manager of the Andover News Company, as his opponent. Mr. Wilson has run for the position the past two years and has made a creditable showing against selectmen Hardy and Shepard. It will be Mr. Collins' third election in less than seven months, he having successfully though reluctantly run for Representative in the fall primaries and election upon the insistence of friends who felt he was the only man who could gain representation for Andover.

Chairman Sidney P. White of the B. P. W. is opposed by George Cairns who was nosed out last year by John White in a many-cornered race. Tree warden G. Richard Abbott's opponent is Thomas Morrissey, whose strength last year was the chief election surprise.

There are four candidates for the three school board terms. Chairman Fred C. Smith and Mrs. A. Graham Baldwin are up for re-election with Rev. Albert C. Morris and Mrs. George Brown running for the term vacated by Mrs. Angus. Mrs. Brown is the wife of health board member and candidate George Brown, opposed this year by Gordon Thompson.

The polls will be open from seven to seven.

B. P. W. Trucks Paid For Themselves

A couple of years ago, a town meeting decided to spend some money. Town meetings had been niggardly, had been pinching pennies pretty closely. The pet peeve of the meetings had been the Board of Public Works, but a

For Election Results MONDAY EVENING Call The Townsman

Returns are expected about 8 p. m. and thereafter change came at that time. The preceding year had seen a marked improvement in the operations of the department, with the help being made to get to work as if they were working for a private business and with the whole efficiency of the department being tuned up.

Before town meeting that year the Board got together with the finance committee and the Taxpayers' association directors. As a result of that discussion the town meeting voted to buy not one new truck, not two new trucks but a fleet of five. It was a large initial expenditure, but the officials hoped that it would prove an investment yielding a return in the form of lower operating costs.

Their expectations have been more than justified. Last year alone the trucks more than paid for their initial cost, with a saving over hired trucks of $7,835.71, including a depreciation allowance of $1,500 figured on a four-year washout. The labor on the trucks, and the maintenance cost (gas, oil, tires, repairs, etc.) totalled $8,942.29, and with depreciation the total chargeable cost was $10,442.29. Figuring the cost of privately hired trucks to do the work done last year by the town trucks, the total comes to $18,278, or $7,835.71 over the town truck cost.

A careful check is kept on each truck, with the result that the department has figures for each on the amount of gas and oil used, the repair costs, mileage, hours used, etc. Each truck was used an average of 2465 hours for an average mileage of 14,330. The average gasoline consumption was 2129 gallons, with the miles per gallon ranging from 6.3 to 7.2. Average gasoline cost was $222.

One of the most amazing figures is the oil consumption, the trucks averaging in a year's time only 16.3 quarts each. With the ordinary car changing oil every 1200 miles or so, the oil consumption would have been around 60 quarts, and the cost a good deal more than the $1.98 averaged by these trucks. This saving is made by the use of filters.

Other costs, averaged, were: Repairs, $105.55; tires, batteries, $47.62; miscellaneous, $21.21.

The operating costs per mile vary between .02 and .036. The labor cost varies between .089 and .143. Not taken into consideration is the fact that with the town drivers working during loading operations, much more value is received than from the money paid to private drivers on private trucks, for they were loath to work.

Some private trucks are being hired, particularly under the W.

P. A., and because of the tremendous savings made by the purchase of the five trucks, there has been some discussion among Taxpayers' association directors and the Board of Public Works about the feasibility of purchasing another truck. If this were possible, the Board would probably purchase a larger one which would eliminate much of the hiring of heavy trucks for snow plowing.

Remarkable savings have been made by the purchase of some of last year's equipment, also, such as the gasoline roller and the road hone. The various savings are reflected in a five percent drop in this year's regular budget.

Six Departments Fight Mill Blaze

The Boston express out of Portland left on the dot of 5.40 Sunday evening. Everything proceeded smoothly, with the passengers looking forward to making connections in Boston on time. Three snow trains, bearing a horde of would-be skiers-had-there-been-any snow, shushed onto the main line after the express went by. In Lawrence an express to Boston waited patiently to start off at 8.03. Out of Boston at 6.10 an express started on its journey to Portland. About an hour later a local left for Lawrence and Haverhill. Also shunted onto the mainline was a freight. Portland-bound out of Mechanicsville.

Nobody on those expresses had the least idea that they would stop in Andover. After all there was no way in which those boarding the express in Portland at 5.40 could know that box 56 was sounding in Andover at just about that same time, that box 28 summoned Ballardvale's department a few minutes later, that within a half hour or so apparatus was to descend on the town from Lawrence, Haverhill, North Andover, North Reading, Reading and Methuen. There was no way that any of them could know that of the 13 lines of hose which squirmed their way toward the Plastex Corporation plant three or four would cross the railroad tracks and tie up B. & M. traffic for a good two hours.

But there was a way in which hundreds of other people heard about it. At 6.30 the radio news flash poured forth its cryptic story: "Serious fire in Andover, 22 mill buildings endangered, rapidly going out of control." Then the rush started. From everywhere they seemed to come, in cars, on foot. Traffic was all tied up. State police were called in; Lawrence sent over some extras. All available Andover officers, reserves, provisionals, were pressed into service. As far down as Stevens street, as far up as the Hill, officers diverted traffic from the fire area already crowded with parked cars. Special officer John Campbell was at the railroad station which was mobbed with on-lookers, and his picture of the visiting firemen's arrival is graphic: "Good night, I saw one coming at me down Railroad avenue, and then one comes down Pearson street, another comes down Essex street, and pretty soon still another comes down School street." Alderman Thomas Galvin, public safety head of Lawrence, arrived with the first piece and immediately sent back for four more, including the new aerial ladder truck. All set for a quiet evening at the radio, the fire chief of Wellesley heard the broadcast; 35 minutes later he was here.

Newspapermen from surrounding towns rushed to Andover. Camera flashes went off so frequently that they got on fireman Bill Collins' nerves. Even from the Haverhill Gazette there came a cameraman. Photographing a fire is a difficult job, for several reasons, and three of the city papers, on developing their negatives to find blanks, descended on Townsman photographer Sur-ette, first on the scene, for prints of his shots.

The fire of itself was a bad one. Estimates of the damage varied, some of the more wild-eyed newspapermen hazarded $100,000 as a guess; others toned it down to $50,000; generally accepted was a compromise of $75,000. What was more important than the amount of damage done was the amount that could have been done had not Chief Buchan summoned aid immediately when he saw the blaze's potentialities. The wind was blowing the embers directly toward the other buildings in the Smith and Dove yard, some of them with valuable machinery, wool, etc. Were the wind to shift, a whole group of frame dwelling houses in the Indian Ridge section would have been endangered.

Most of the crowd stayed at the station or jammed into the mouth of Red Spring road. Only officials were allowed in the mill yard, so only they were able to realize just what an excellent piece of work was being done. Lights were continually playing around those other buildings, with men ready to pounce on any errant blaze. Thrice they were called into service, once for a blaze on the roof of the M. T. Stevens Dundee warehouse, again for one in the basement of the Stephenson machinery plant, and later for a blaze in a tree at the B. & M. tool house across the tracks. Grass near the cricket field ignited in several places. But every one of these was put out immediately, with but little damage, thanks to the watchfulness of the firemen. It was like a checkergame in which your opponent has you covered; no matter in which way the flames jumped, they were licked.

There was also some private fire prevention work. Residents even as far away as Central street played water on their homes because of the sparks which the wind was carrying across fields, streets and houses.

One of the chief worries of the firemen was the presence of two large tanks, 2,000 gallons each, of naphtha stored under the cement floor of the burning building. Police kept spectators at a distance for fear of an explosion, but constant dousing of the floor prevented this. It was well into the night before any of the visiting departments could feel free to leave the blaze. Andover's men were not completely out of there before five the next morning, and some returned during the forenoon, since blazes appeared frequently beneath the smoldering beams.

Also busy at the scene of the fire was the Red Cross disaster committee which served coffee and sandwiches under the supervision of Andrew Crotty, chairman of the sub-committee on food. Those working at the fire were: Miss Anna Kuhn and Stafford Lindsay, vice-chairman; Henry Hopper, Frank Markey, Philip Ripley and chapter chairman Carleton Kimball.

The Plastex Corporation is a branch of the North American Chemical Company. It is new to Andover, having come here in December. Operations had not proceeded at capacity, with only about six persons being employed. It was reported that the fire may have started when a spark ignited some leather shavings ground up in the basement and sent up to the second floor by a blower.

WHERE TO GO WHAT TO DO

The Margaret Slattery Class of the Free Church has conducted minstrels, plays, stunt nights, etc., but for the first day of spring they are planning a record breaking minstrel show to be held in the Memorial Auditorium, with Mrs. John Souter acting as interlocutor.

The chorus will include the following: Mrs. John White, Irma Beene, Helen Marr, Martha Thomson, Mrs. David Reynolds, Mrs. James Holden, Mrs. Edward Schubert, Mrs. John Denholm, Mrs. William Crowley, Annie White, Mary Marr, Eleanor Gorrie, Ellen Stewart, Mrs. Thomas Woodhead, Rita Kinnear, Lillian Brown, Mrs. Thomas Chadwick, Margaret Neil, Frances Hartmann, Mrs. Christine McIntyre and Miriam Marr.

Mrs. David MacDonald, Emma Stevens, Margaret Laurie, Mrs. Elizabeth Moore, Isabell Maclaren and Ruby Laurie, the endmen, will keep the evening lively and the people hilarious.

A few of the songs planned by the end men are "Down By The Ohio," "When Frances Dances with Me," "McNamara's Band," "Carolina in the Morning," "Tuck Me To Sleep in My Old 'tucky Home," and "When Patty McGinty Played His Harp." From the above list of songs you can see that the class is planning songs for the "old-timers" and "moderns" so that everyone will be guaranteed a wonderful time.

Friends of Abbot Academy are cordially invited to attend Davis Hall on Saturday at 8 o'clock and hear Phyllis Bentley, distinguished English novelist and author of "The Power and the Glory," "The Spinner of the Years," "A Modern Tragedy," and many other best sellers, deliver a lecture on the subject "Character from a Novelist's Point of View." This is an amusing account of how characters in fiction are created and made real to the reader, the gathering of material from life, the sport of observation, and the struggles of famous authors with their characters.

Miss Bentley, born in the North of England, is serving as an ambulance driver in the present war as a member of the Air Raid Precaution organization for the protection of the civilian population.

What is the Punched Alumni Association planning for their stunt night which will be held on March 7? They're keeping it a secret so that everything that happens will be a complete surprise for the enjoyment of everyone. However, we did find out that some of the "would be stunts" are Walter Pearson, Roger Whitcomb, Norman Drouin, Douglas Howe, David Petrie, Robert Nicoll and John Murray.

The group is rehearsing diligently and even though their plans are secretly kept to themselves, everyone is planning to attend as all alumni functions are bound to be appreciated by both young and old.

If you mixed chicken pies and roast beef together you would certainly get hash—but, if you attend two separate affairs, one serving chicken pies and another serving roast beef then you would have a wonderful time.

On Saturday, the A. P. C. Sorority of the South Church is planning a chicken pie supper in the vestry at 6 o'clock; on March 18, the men of the South Church are conducting a roast beef supper in the vestry.

The Sorority has chosen the following members to serve on the committee: Miss Harriet Newman, Mrs. Irving Newman, co-chairmen, assisted by Mrs. Frank Petty, Mrs. George Abbott, Mrs. Franklin Ellis and Mrs. Fred Gould. Tickets may be obtained by contacting Betty Sherman or calling 932-J.

"When Irish hearts are happy, all the world seems bright and gay," and if that is the case, not one of you should miss the annual Irish night to be conducted by the St. Augustine's school children on March 17 in the Memorial Auditorium. And remember,

"When Irish eyes are smiling, sure they steal your heart away," and your heart will be stolen when you see the dancing colleens and merry Irish lads performing their bit to make everyone have the most enjoyable time of their life.

Tickets may be obtained from various children of the school for 50 cents.

Round up the gang and make plans to go to the Community Room on March 1 and see a regular gang of Royal Mountaineers provide an evening full of lively entertainment. The group under the leadership of Montana Jim will conduct an amateur show following their performance and will provide music for the general dancing which will follow.

The Mountaineers include Stanley Smith, Leo Beaulieu, Francis Buskey, Victor Rallo, Frank Cappolo, Nick Angelo, Texas Lu, the Fiddling Cowgirl, Arizona Twins, Mollie and Tessie, and Pee Wee Pete, violinist.

Many prizes will be awarded to contestants and to the prize waltzers.

A committee for the local Greek War Relief Association will conduct a Bakery Sale in the Musgrove Building on Saturday, March 1. Baked beans, cakes, pies and Greek pastries will be on sale. The chairman of the committee in charge is Mrs. Sophie Gigas.

SIoux INDIANS SUBJECT OF TALK

On Friday evening, a large group of the men and boys of the Union Congregational parish enjoyed an evening of entertainment when they heard Dr. Rudolf Hertz speak on his work with the Sioux Indians of South Dakota.

Community singing followed with Joseph Stott acting as pianist. Refreshments were served by Rev. David Segestrom, assisted by the Church choir.

Continue Exhibit At John-Esther

Owing to its unusual popularity, the exhibition of work by the Boston Museum School is being continued for an additional week in the John-Esther Gallery. Many people have noted the fine arrangement of the work, and have been interested in tracing the development of the student through various forms of abstract composition as well as through stages in realistic painting. By careful study, the observer may see clearly the growth in texture, tone color, proportion, and life-like qualities which this exhibit so well displays.

An exquisitely executed model of an interior, brings together the various departments into a compact unit; sculpture, interior decorating, painting, and silversmith work complement each other in the miniature rugs, fixtures, and furniture.

The show is rounded out by three cases of silver service and jewelry.

Lessons From a Fire

Sunday night's fire proved several things to the people of Andover. One was that the Board of Selectmen made no mistake in putting the worries of the fire department on the shoulders of the new chief, Ed Buchan. His immediate sensing of the potentialities of the blaze, and his equally as immediate summoning of extra help gave ample evidence of his ability to fill the position as it should be filled.

When we say "immediate summoning of extra help," we mean that his decision was made immediately. We do not mean that the help was summoned immediately, because there was no 'phone near at hand to accomplish this end. The nearest house with a 'phone was quite far away, and the occupants were at the fire. As a result some of the calling was done from uptown, necessitating a delay. Had the town a two-way radio system as is advocated in one of the articles for the coming town meeting, it would have been a simple matter for the chief to hop in the police car and call the station via short-wave radio. In this and in many other ways, the two-way system would prove very valuable.

Another thing proved was that the town would make no mistake in purchasing the proposed aerial ladder truck. Had Andover had an aerial ladder Sunday night it could have driven in close to the blaze and several lines could have coured water from above the blaze into the middle of it. With the equipment we had there, it was necessary to stand below the fire and pour through windows with much less effect than the other method would have.

There is also a real need for additional call men in Andover, men working fairly near the station and free to answer box alarms at any time. On Monday night the finance committee and the Taxpayers' association directors discussed this problem, with the suggestion that some of the larger employers allow two or three of their men to become members of the call department and then allow them to leave their work when the alarm rings. Some of these employers were present, and expressed a sincere willingness to help this way.

Street Acceptances Cause Of Dissension

One of the fiercest fights in town meeting this year promises to come over the acceptance of streets. Of the many which have come up before the Board of Survey only three have been approved, and of these only two have been laid out by the selectmen. According to town counsel Arthur Sweeney, unless these two boards have given their approval, any town meeting approval will have no legal standing.

Under this ruling, any talk on the subject at town meeting will be just a waste of time. However, some of the petitioners are planning to seek other legal advice, in the belief that since the statute is a new one with no precedents to aid in its interpretation, court action might overrule the town counsel.

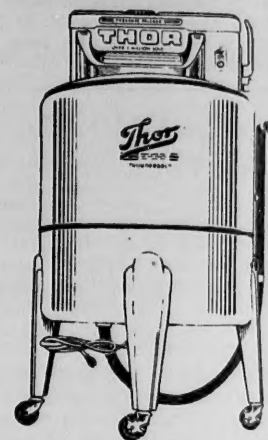

The survey board, which was formerly the selectmen, but under the new law is the planning board, must approve the plan of the street, and this plan must live up to certain regulations. Following this step, the selectmen lay out the street, and then the rest is up to the town meeting.

Approval has been given by the survey board only to the Johnson acres article, the Foster Circle acceptance, and the Elm court acceptance. The last one, however, is not being laid out by the selectmen because some of the abutters are objecting. According to the town counsel's ruling then the town meeting may legally approve only Cheever Circle and Foster Circle.

The wording of some of the articles in the warrant is erroneous, in that they state "as approved by the Board of Survey." The Elm Court article includes the wording, "laid out by the selectmen," and this is not yet so. Erroneous wording appears in the following articles: Highland avenue, Iceland road, Moraine street, and Bradley avenue.

BE SURE TO VOTE

You haven't had so many persons asking for your vote this year, but your vote is needed just as much. There are five positions being contested for; if you stay at home, the better person might not win, and because of your apathy the town might be saddled for the next one to three years with someone who could not have served as well as the losing candidate.

We still have the right to choose our own governing bodies; to make that right worthwhile we have the duty to vote and vote wisely. When you mark your ballot Monday, there should be but one consideration in your mind: which of these people will do the best job for the town? One whose vote is motivated by any other consideration than this is not serving his town's best interests.

The articles on Princeton road and Lincoln Circle will probably create the greatest controversy. Here the petitioner, George Cairns, who has developed Shawshen Heights and started the Lincoln Circle development, was led to believe that the town would follow its former action of accepting streets in new developments and purchasing the water mains laid by the developer. The change in the law creates a hardship in his case, since he has tied up his money in these mains. The Board of Survey has not given approval to these articles, mainly because they apply only to a portion of a street, which in the Board's opinion, might become a dead-end street if anything were to happen to halt the development.

Lenten Vespers To Start Sunday

The first of the Union Lenten Vesper Services of the Andover churches will be held at the South Church on March 2 with the Reverend George S. Noss of Japan speaking. Mr. Noss was born in Japan and except for his educational years has lived there ever since. After teaching English at North Japan College in Sendai for some time, he became an evangelistic missionary, living for the past ten years at Aomori. He speaks and writes Japanese perfectly, understands the people, their customs, and their habits of mind as few Americans have ever done. The story of his last three years over there is exceedingly interesting, and should prove of great value to every thoughtful American.

He was compelled to leave his work in Japan and returned to America about the first of the year under orders from his mission board, after long withstanding the persuasion of the American State Department and the pressure of the authorities in Japan.

You Will Not Hear This Program On Your Radio

An experienced coffee roaster called on us a few days ago and showed us an exceptionally good coffee. We thought it tasted mighty fine. Before we buy very much of this coffee, however, we would like to get the judgment of about fifty people who know how good coffee should taste. Since the price of this coffee is reasonable some may think it does not have the quality it really has. You will not hear any radio program where an opera singer or a Hollywood star will be telling you of the merits of this coffee, but you will enjoy a saving of about 10 cents a pound. This coffee is going to be sold for 17¢ or 3 lbs. for 50¢. Ground to your wishes.
